Menials in Lives.

They call Grant a plain, modest man, but just look at him as he drives out. Here is a description by one who has studied the display:

"Do you see that pair of large, well-matched bay horses?"

"And the harness too—bright, massively golden, and gorgous—are strictly in keeping with the magnificence of the horses; so that, so far as both of these are concerned, you are reminded of the equipages of the wealthy and aristocratic."

"But still more conspicuous, as they approach are the driver and his companion."

"Jet isn't a circumstance to the blackness of their faces, while the costumes are white corduroy and white flannel trimmed with silver, with white top-boots, nearly as you can make out."

"The part wherein sit the driver and his ally is considerably elevated above the rest, while the rear is converted into a seat for the proprietor of all this Fiskysplendor."

"And that man there, with a head surmounted by a white stove-pipe hat, with a face that don't indicate anything in particular, but seems to give show both of the larder and the cellar? Why, that's the President!"

When Dr. Horace Greeley is President, does anybody suppose that he will drive about like a quack doctor at a fair, or a shoddy contractor with negro mementos in livery, with all the ostentation of Fiskysplendor? Not he. There's no shoddy about him.—New York Sun.

Railroad Signals.

One whistle, "down brakes"; two whistles, "off brakes"; three whistles "back up"; continued whistles "danger." A continued succession of short whistles is the cattle alarm, at which the brakes will always be put down. When a conductor gives a signal by a sweeping parting of hands on level with his eyes, it means "go ahead;" a downward motion of the hand, with extended arms, "stop;" a beckoning motion of the hand, "to back;" a lantern raised and lowered vertically is a signal for starting; swing at right angles or crossways the track, to stop; swing in a circle, to back the train. A red flag waved upon the track is a signal of danger; so of other signals given with energy. A red flag hoisted at a station is a signal for a train to stop; stuck up by the roadside, it is a signal of danger on the train ahead; carried unfurled upon an engine, a warning that another engine or train is on the way.

Brother Dick's Works.

During a class meeting held several years since by the Methodist brethren of a Southern village, Brother Jones went among the colored portion of the congregation. Finding there an old man notorious for his endeavor to serve the Lord in Sabbath and Satan the rest of the week, he said:

"Well, Brother Dick, I'm glad to see you here. Haven't stole any turkeys since I saw you last, Brother Dick?"

"No Brother Jones, no turkeys."

"Nor any chicken, Brother Dick?"

"No, no, Brother Jones, no chickens!"

"Thank the Lord, Brother Dick! That's doing well, my brother!" said Brother Jones, leaving Brother Dick, who immediately relieved his overburdened conscience by saying to a near neighbor, with an immense sigh of relief:

"Ef he'd said ducks he'd had a bad me?" —Advance.

We are told that "Chignons fall in cascade down the back and ripple under waves of lace, which tumble in chaotic confusion from the top of the head, flat crowned hats." That is much sweter than a waterfall.

Do You Want a Farm?

600 ACRES
FOR SALE

I OFFER FOR SALE, AT A GREAT SACRIFICE, my farm, situated one and a half miles from Stanford, near the Somerset pile; containing 600 ACRES.

A large farm dwelling, with eight rooms, double parlors, dining room, and spacious halls. The farm is susceptible of division into two or more tracts.

Wood, water, and soil can be found on this farm, which is as good as any fair average of land in this country.

Terms Easy.

A charming site, unimpeded view, is in the land. A bold stream of clear, cold, sparkling water, and a substantial log house by the roadside is already built. Call me, or write.
